Two words that summarize the times we are in: Imperialist empire. Imperialism, in the guise of government or private enterprise, is at the center of power and the center of manipulation. We are not simply now looking at an imperialistic government, we are looking at an imperialistic economics and an imperialistic culture. One of the most insidious aspects of imperialistic economics and imperialistic culture is the attempt to make people submissive and passive and to keep them in the dark. We need to look at ways to counter the influence of such an empire. To counter the imperialistic influence of our own culture, or to counter the influence of a government empire, we must be ready with knowledge and arguments and with our own ideas and efforts to win people over. Just as we do not want the imperialistic influence in our own life to go on and on and on, we must stand up against it. The road to freedom goes through action. Resistance is sometimes a good thing. It can be an inspirational act. We must never be complacent, because resistance can be difficult, and it must be unrelenting. In the following, you will find information about imperialistic influences and behavior in the home, workplace, school, community, and in the government. The best way to fight such influences is with your own awareness. If you are aware of them, you are in a better position to oppose them. Here are some areas to consider. TECHNOLOGY – THE BEAST WITH TWO BODIES We are moving into a world where we have an imperialistic economy and empire in our homes, in our schools, and in our government. We all depend on the machinery of the technological age, the internet, cell phones, and other technology that has made so many of our lives easier and even more interesting. With that much in our lives, how can we avoid being sucked in and taken over by the technological empire? We have to develop a resistance to these influences. We must be critical of them. If we do not, the technology and the empire are what we will become. While we cannot get away from technology, we can be aware of how it affects us and keep our distance from it. We can make use of it and become enamored of it. But we must resist it and not let it use us. When we are exposed to technology, we should be aware of the ways it is making us passive.
